The Nye Committee vs. The American People

A new form of autocratic bureaucracy is developing in this country.
The people of the several states are not allowed to be allowed to determine what senators shall represent their states in Congress.
A senatorial committee is now to investigate every election and decide whether the people of the states are competent to elect their senators, and whether the senators elected by the people meet the approval of the bureaucratic senatorial committee.
Many of the elected senators who do not meet the approval of the committee, have not been seated by the Senate.
In other words, the states and the people of the states are deprived of the right to elect their own senatorial representatives, and in its place is substituted the right—or rather the WRONG—of a senatorial committee practically to select senators and to decide when the public's will shall be recognized and when it shall not.
Surely the right of the Senate to determine the fitness of its members does not extend to this revolutionary length.
Surely it does not supercede the constitutional right, the fundamental popular right, the essential American right of the people to elect their own representatives.
If the alleged right of a handful of self-sufficient senators conflicts with the fundamental rights of the American people, then the one immediately necessary procedure is to amend the Constitution and deprive these fatuous senators of the privilege they so dangerously abuse.

BAR EXAMINATIONS ATTACKED AS "INADEQUATE" IN REPORT

HARDER TESTS HIGHER FEES ARE URGED

Judicial Committee Recommends an Examination of Several Days' Duration

Denouncing the present examination machinery for admission to the bar as "inadequate," the Judicial Council, in recommendations filed today at the State House, urged a stiller examination with increased fees. In place of the present system of 20 written questions given in a single day's test, the council goes on record in favor of an examination covering a period of several days, with an oral quiz, to be paid for by jockeying up the fee. The examination, the council declared, should be held once a year, instead of twice, as now.

"Too much emphasis has been placed on who should be examined and too little attention paid as to how they should be examined," the report stated. "The immediate problem is not one of legislation, but of administration, and we think, except for necessary financing, the Legislature should stay its hand until it becomes more obvious than it now appears to us that changes of method will not effect substantial cure."

BAR DETERIORATION

From a study of applicants for the bar during the last 10 years, the council deduced that "from the records of examinations, recommendations and ultimate admissions," the "backlog of insufficiently qualified men through the present inadequate examination machinery has actually resulted in a noticeable deterioration of the bar."

The Boston municipal court just cited are quoted as having said: "There is an increasing proportion of attorneys lacking in the legal knowledge necessary to safeguard the rights of litigants, and in the moral caliber which the court has a right to expect from its officers."

The council does not favor any such requirement as a certain amount of college study prior to admission, and is convinced that public opinion is against such limitation in the lack of opportunity.

RECOMMENDATION RENEWED

But it is pointed out that for more than a quarter of a century the Bar of Massachusetts has in general been composed of men of more than average education. A recommendation made a year ago for measured service and recommendation for certain judges is renewed, and the further recommendation is made that the entrance to the Superior court be increased, that an advisory committee for the probate courts be established and that there be written about a significant number of writs.

Conn. Firm Awarded Destroyer Contract

Can We Wait for Federal Pensions?

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Now everybody knows how the farmers felt when they were hawking for farm relief last year. We think the farmers are better off than we are. At least a farmer has a farm. Even if it's made of replaced bricks.

There seems to be a little kick in all of us. We want relief, too. Congress is going to kick forth an appropriation of thirty million dollars for food.

It was supposed to be sixty million. But President Hoover told Senator Watson that was too much.

He said the appropriation was to be for food. Not for food and drink. But by the time Congress gets through hawking and licking there will be no food.

They've got to vote on it. It's filibuster on it, compromise on it, argue on it, kick it around and table it. Then they let it to the committee for alterations and when the laundry comes back there isn't any buttons on it.

The smart citizen doesn't wait for government relief. He goes out and hustles for himself and talks nobody.

The citizens who are getting by these days are the boys who are keeping it a secret. The fool who is here outside when it's 10/2 on the street, but the rooster never crows when it finds a little corn. (Copyright, 1930, Distributed by Universal Service, Inc.)

"So to Almighty God, the Father and Creator of all, and to the Blessed Lady, the Mother of Christ, the Mother of God, and to the Blessed Trinity and all the saints in Heaven, I offer with you in communion with all the saints of the Church our deepest gratitude, our fervent thanksgiving, Mr. God's blessing rest upon you all."

"It's Christmas-time in Boston"

POLICE OFFICER ASKS AID FOR FAMILY

Six children living in a South End tenement house are waiting day by day for an answer to the appeal sent by their mother to the Helping Hand Department of the Boston Evening American. The father, in ill health for two years, is without work. He has tried for months to find employment, but in his weakened condition he would probably be unable to carry on even if he were fortunate enough to get a job.

So desperate is the plight of this family that a patrolman covering the district selected the mother to write the Helping Hand Department and ask for aid. The officer added his own signature to the letter as a guarantee that the case was a worthy one and requiring immediate attention.

CRIPPLE ASKS AID (Refer to Case 94)

I know that this is going to be a very hard and long Christmas for me and my family. I have a wife and five children and my mother is blind. My father is old and can't find any work. The factory where I worked shut down and I can't go looking for work. We are very needy and poor and some days we haven't even a cent to eat. I wish that you would have some pity on us and send us some good things to eat for Christmas. You might think that this is a false hardship story, but it isn't. If anyone wishes to investigate, they may come and see for themselves.

This girl lives in East Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may learn the address by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4006, and ask for Case 94.

MOTHER'S LETTER (Refer to Case 95)

My husband has heart trouble and I am alone with four children and I am sure I would be glad and appreciate a Christmas dinner or whatever you could oblige us with in winter clothing. I have a boy, 12, a girl, 11; a boy, 10; a girl, 9; a girl, 7, and a baby, 2 years old. It is very hard for me as there is no

IN 1830 two successfully operated steam fire engines were acquired by the Boston fire department. They were named "Lawrence" and "Edipolis." This picture shows the "Lawrence." First used in the great Federal street, they demonstrated their efficiency at once. The "Lawrence" was housed in Purchase st. It had a cylinder nine inches in diameter and with 570 pounds of water weighed 1870 pounds. I had a crew of seven men, "who were required to be at the engine house night and day." The cost of the engine was $3500.

NEED WARM CLOTHES (Refer to Case 93)

I am a mother of nine children and my husband has been out of work for 14 months. The children are very much in need of clothing, shoes and overcoats. The baby is in need of warm clothes. The children's ages are 15, 13, 12, 10, 8, 7, 6, 4 and 2 months. The oldest is very delicate. I wish you would please help me with anything I need.

This child lives in West Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may learn the address by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4006, and ask for Case 93.

CHILD'S FLEA (Refer to Case 92)

I wonder if you can help us. My mother takes care of a boy 8 years old. Will you help us get some clothes and things for Christmas?

This child lives in West Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may learn the address by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4006, and ask for Case 92.

MOTHER ASKS AID (Refer to Case 96)

This is the first time I have ever asked for help. I am a young married woman with a 13 months old baby girl. My husband left here last March and I do not know where he went. I am but 21 years old and live with my father, who has not worked for some time and both my baby and I need clothing. Baby takes size 2 and I take 40 or 42. I have two sisters who are also in need of a few dresses and underwear. Both are 10 to 11 years old. Won't you please help us? If it is not too much trouble, but it costs you nothing to ask for help. I would be most appreciated.

FOUR HURT IN TRIPLE CRASH

Marlboro, Dec. 8.—Four persons were injured and three automobiles were wrecked in a triple collision on the Boston Post road here early today.

Miss Lillian Case, 25, of 315 Pleasant st., Worcester, was operating a sedan which was in collision with a sedan operated by Joseph L. Clifford of 308 Washington st., Portland Me., as it came out of a driveway into the Post road.

Clifford lost control of his machine, police say, and it crashed into a third car, operated by Mrs. A. Armstrong of 233 Playfield rd., West Medford.

Miss Case and a companion, Henry Hanson, of the Ray State Hotel, Worcester, were cut by flying glass.

Clifford and his wife suffered internal injuries and Armstrong also was injured.

MAJOR WITNESS IN DEATH CASE

Kansas City, Kan., Dec. 8 (AP).—Major J. C. Dyer, army medical officer, testified in Federal court today in the murder trial of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, that the condition of Mrs. Zezenna Sheppard was prior to her death might have been caused by a sleepwalking person, or by the use of alcohol.

Called as a government witness, Maj. Dyer, now stationed at Fort Warren, Wyo., said he had been summoned to attend Mrs. Shepard at 11:30 p.m., the day after she was found with an illness that proved fatal at Fort Riley, Kan., on Jan. 1, 1929.

Maj. Dyer also testified some of the medicine prescribed for Mrs. Sheppard contained alcohol, which in relation to chemical composition is the same as the government witnesses who died.

Miss Boston Like Rest of Nation, Fashion Census Reveals

Further details of the nationwide fashion census will be found in the magazine page today.

By AMOS PARISH
America's Foremost Stylist

Now does this city, Boston, stack up with the rest of the country? Do Mrs. and Miss United States look the same here as they walk down Washington, up Tremont or out Boylston st. as they do in other important cities?

Indeed they do, as the Boston Evening American-Boston Sunday Advertiser Fashion Census proves. And a great Fashion Census it is. Congratulations to these two newspapers, and to all who had a part in its success.

BLACK IS PREFERRED

Boston women prefer the black coat to coats of any other color... at the country at large prefer this a black coat trimmed with long-haired, light fur as the rest of the country profess.

It was in their second choice that the nation's Black dress is their third, with it sewed, mixtures pushed into fourth place. Then comes blue—fourth in the nation's count—and red. Boston agrees that middle calf length is the best length for day time skirts. And that lower calf is next best. With Upper calf third and ankle length last.

Amos Parish

THE STOCKING COLORS

Boston agrees, too, that medium black or tan is the smartest color for stockings. And she agrees with the rest of the country's choice—brown, gunmetal, medium gray and black.

Mrs. and Miss Boston prefer the plain alpaca glove. And that's what Mrs. and Miss United States wear.

BELL'S SEASONING

Oven Cookery In Glass Is Wonderful

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WLEN
EVEN THIS most unpretentious housewife knows how superior oven cooked foods are to foods boiled on the top of the stove, but not all of them know the joy of even cooking in glass. Right now is a good time to add some heat-proof glass cooking ware to your kitchen list.
You don't need
many pieces,
since one dish has so many uses. To say that a round
casserole, a medium sized oblong utility dish, a chicken like a cake pan, a medium size loaf pan, pie plate and six custard cups would be a very complete outfit.

Here are some dishes especially adapted to oven cooking, especially nice if that cooking is done in glass.

BAKED CHEESE DREAMS Spread eight slices of bread with butter, cover four pieces of the bread with slices of cheese, spread generously with prepared mustard, sprinkle with paprika. Cut sandwiches in two and place in heat-proof glass baking dish. Heat two eggs slightly, add 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, few grains onion and capsicum, two cups milk. Strain over sandwiches and bake until brown.

BAKED HASH
Remove skin, bones, gristle and marrow of the fat from cooked beef, then chop the meat and measure.
Chop an equal quantity of a little more cold cooked potato and mix with the meat. Season with salt and pepper and moisten with milk, cream or gravy. Put lightly into heat-proof glass platter.
pat bits of butter over the top and bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes.
2 unit heated through and slightly brown on top. Garnish with parsley and serve in the same dish.

FISH A LA MONTGOMERY
4 lbs. sea bass or other fish.
1 small onion.
2 cups strained tomato pulp.
1 green pepper.
1 cup port or home-made wine if desired.
1 tablespoon butter.
1 tablespoon flour.
4 tomatoes.
Parsley, pepper, salt, butter.
Scale, wash and dry the fish.
Rub on both sides with flour, salt and pepper. Cut a deep gash the length of fish on both sides, then place it on a large buttered heat-proof glass platter.

Pour over this a sauce of tomato,
onion, parsley and green pepper,
each chopped, and water on top fish place dots of butter. Remove inner and top of tomatoes, sprinkle each with salt, pepper and dots of butter. Arrange tomatoes around the fish, then bake all in a moderate oven about 45 minutes. Baste the fish with sauce several times.
If the latter is thin at the end add butter and flour creamed together. Finely chopped parsley and one tablespoonful lemon juice may also be added to sauce. Disturb with a few sprays of fresh parsley and serve at once in same dish.

SCALLOPED RICE AND SAL-MON.
Put in utility dish a layer of boiled rice, cover with salmon, cooked or canned, and separated in slices. Sprinkle with salt, pepper nutmeg and few drops lemon juice.
Cover with boiled rice. Place in strainer and boil over boiling water for 45 minutes. Sprinkle with butter, crumbs and bake until crumbs are brown. Cooked chicken or lamb or raw oysters may be used in place of salmon.
Faithfully yours,
Martha Lee

AS SIMPLE AS

Wherever the best food is produced, A&P buyers are on the spot to buy it. A&P selects only the best of a crop or pack.

A&P cuts out needless expense and wasteful handling by controlling the movement of food from the time it is bought at its source until it is sold at the store counter.

Although performing the tasks of broker, jobber, retailer, and offtimes of manufacturer, A&P takes only one small profit—extremely small, in fact.

Nothing complicated about that, is there? Of course not. It is the A B C of modern retailing. How A&P sells the highest quality food at the lowest possible prices is the simplest thing in the world.

BROKEN RAINBOWS

Wilda Has Them All Guessing at Ball

HOW THE STORY STARTS
Wilda Garding, bookkeeper in a hardware store, is in love with Logan Townsend, who "has not spoken yet."
He is no Adams, Wilda thinks, but he has a rare smile. This smile also attracts Best Avery, a stenographer in an office near Logan's. Wilda's mother, Garvie, has been strangely distracted since the father died. He is interested to have left much money and she plans to leave the poor little cottage in which they live in Boston and get in touch with a richer life. Wilda goes to house party where she meets Logan and he tells her love.

"Broume! You've been 'broume' for close upon an hour. Quick! I'll rap into that bath in (other room—I've drawn it for you—and I've laid out fresh underthings for you, and your new pink taffeta—"

Wilda dressed rapidly.

This time she wouldn't let the officious Coral touch her face up, for the natural flush upon her smooth young cheeks was no longer hidden from any gaze that ever came from Datt.

She fluffed a little of gray powder on her nose and ears and then—into the exquisite pink dress that was enriched with pastel flower motifs.

It clung about her hips in princess style. It displayed the tender curves of her beautiful young figure.

Coral drew a deep breath, staring at her. "Gosh! If he's dippy about you now, he'll sure knock him bloody, Wilda."

"Look here! It walks behind and over your wrap. I want you to knock him cold as you can. I'll be with you in five minutes. I'll be with you in five minutes. I'll be with you in five minutes."

Wilda's face was full of a faint smile. She was looking at Coral with a look of amusement.

"I wish you think it's a bit extreme," I mean—the back on the line."

"Nonsense! It's the latest thing. It's absolutely perfect. But shouldn't I wear a scarf? There's only these few frail straps over the shoulders."

"And then there's that. You shouldn't be hidden. I want to see you. You're Wilda. I'll surely get you, and forget you were ever the little cousin at Schenck."

"But I'm just the same in my heart, and I hate to make a show out of myself."

"You've got to show them and let them see all of you. You're a girl in this dress."

Police Guns ON GUARD AT TRIAL OF 17

Crowd Gathers at Noon, but Nothing Happens in Pemberton Sq.

Picked police with tear-gas bombs and riot-guns surrounded the courthouse today as 17 Communist went to trial for the demonstration against the American Federation of Labor. Making the Most of Today's Dollar

Judgment Needed by Salespeople to Keep Customers Coming Back

The fifteenth of a series of interviews with Massachusetts women leaders giving their suggestions to those who buy goods and to those who sell them concerning their mutual and vital problem of keeping and giving full value in every particular for every dollar spent. The sixteenth will appear in tomorrow's issue of the Evening American.

Miss Mary Driscoll, assistant chairman Massachusetts Better House Committee, and a member of Boston League of Women Voters, has this comment to make regarding shopping—the buyer and the seller:

THE MODERNISTIC manner on noticeable in many stores today is very different, no doubt, but it is not what the conservative element of Boston wants.

Stores must do well to call their buyers together and invite customers to tell them where they think they have made mistakes, or can be more helpful.

Mature judgment is just as important today as it ever was in selling goods of any kind. Salespeople often do not have sufficient mature judgment to know that one customer is as good as another until they have tried to sell them.

Here is an instance that illustrates my point:

I went into a store to buy white bed sheets for an institution. When I asked the young girl at the counter to show me sheets she took out one and laid it on the counter.

Then she turned to a young man who crowded up, asking to be shown spreads. That clerk thought that the other woman would buy a $22 spread while I probably wanted a $150 sheet. Finally an older salesman came over from another counter and asked if she could help me. I bought three dozen sheets from her.

The same thing applies to automobile salespeople. I had made up my mind what kind of a car I wanted and went to a dealer to buy it. A bored young man looked me over and evidently decided that I was just looking around. He was not interested enough to tell me what I inquired about concerning the car, because he was not experienced enough to judge properly. I did not buy that car, but an interested salesman from another agency sold me a car that day.

If a careful buyer is given careful attention she will be a return customer, satisfied with her shopping.

I have gone to a certain store three or four times looking for a good blouse to wear with a skirt I like. I was prepared to pay $15 to $18 for something good in my size, but all I was shown were glaring, modernistic tunics.

I appreciate that methods and styles must change and business must progress, but until a large group of older Boston conservatives die off there is little chance to be done with us.

(44 cash prizes, aggregating $550, are offered to college students, members of the Women's Trade Union League, retail store employees and office workers, for the best brief letters commenting on any ten articles in this series. Fear, and the Bankers

An Expert on Business Conditions

President John B. Edgerton of the National Association of Manufacturers, with whose reactionary political and social welfare policies this newspaper has so thoroughly disagreed, was made, nevertheless, what we believe to be the best summary of the present economic condition of this country.

Fear, the most destructive force ever known to man, did not bring on the depression, but is now sustaining it, Mr. Edgerton says.

"It is fear that has driven money into stockpiles, coffee pots and other dark places."

"It is fear that makes business men hesitate to utilize the very surpluses which they have built up as shelters against storms."

"It is fear that is causing men with money or credit, or both, to hesitate to provide themselves and their families with the things they want and need."

Faith is the most effective remedy for fear, he says. And anybody who only the little sense required to recall the marvelous growth of the past could but have the faith that better times are ahead and can be ushered in the more promptly by his own efforts.

"Those who have any faith, with money or credit," he says, "have a magnificent opportunity to exercise it now, and by so doing help not only themselves but everybody else."

"Those who need new suits of clothes, an automobile, or anything, will not act only with intelligence but very helpfully, if they will get these things now."

People shrink from the very thought of charity, he warns, and they will endure it only so long as they are compelled to. He concludes:

"They want an opportunity to earn what they require and every person who has the power to contribute to the making of such opportunities has the sacred, solemn duty to make his contribution. It is simply a question of being normal."

Mr. Edgerton might well have addressed a supplementary lecture to the bankers and those others who control the enormous financial resources of the country.

It is they who so very largely amassed the tremendous surpluses in the day of prosperity.

And it is they who best can be taught that the lending and loosening of money now for productive enterprises when men and women need work will bear more satisfactory fruit than ever grew from the use of this money for stock-gamblings and in improvident lendings to tottering, unstable governments abroad.

Penn. R. R. Holdings

Fitzgerald Probe Petition Should Be Granted

Representative Peter J. Fitzgerald of Boston has petitioned the Legislature to ascertain to what extent the Pennsylvania Railroad and its holding corporations have acquired control over the Boston & Maine and the New Haven Railroads.

Mr. Fitzgerald says with evident truth that if actual interests are allowed to absorb these railroads the New England manufacturers, shippers and other patrons will be utterly at their mercy and may again suffer the slaughter of twenty years ago when Wall Street drained them dry and left them prostrate.

His petition should be adopted and the investigation inaugurated without any of those interminable delays which a Legislature can conspire or occasion.

The fact that the committee appointed by the New England Governors is "investigating" the subject should not be used as a pretext for embarrassing or deterring Mr. Fitzgerald's resolution.

This committee has had the subject under inquiry for months and despite the common knowledge that those five old New England railroads are dominated by the Pennsylvania interests, it has accumulated about as much information as a street urchin would get out of a Greek primer.

In fact, the Governors' Committee resembles the position of the husband in the O. Henry story of whom one character said:

"If a woman's reputation were the source of common gossip and 3000 people knew it, I'd be the 2999th and the husband would be the 3000th."

More School Propaganda

World Court and Power Trust

It seems to be a close race between the Power Trust and the League of Nations in distributing their propaganda.

The former reached the primary schools, attempting to teach children right and ten years old that public ownership was a vicious thing, with horns and a long tail.

The League of Nations Association reached the Lee School, in Boston, this week, when a person named Alden G. Alley, described in multiple as "traveler, soldier, educator and lecturer," sought to prevail upon girls of the sub-deb age and social status that what George Washington said about extending alliances was an omen of date as the bustle, hoopskirt and good, old-fashioned morality.

We may soon expect to see babies in their perambulators along the Charles River Esplanade computing the efficiencies of peak loads or debating the ill suspicions that Jefferson, Hancock and the Adamses were merely smugglers, not staunch American patriots, after all.

DOCTOR, HOW ABOUT A PERMANENT CURE?

By Nelson Harding

The patient's ills are being helped, his sufferings relieved. But should not be forgotten until final cure's achieved.

Our economic specialists should on this case remain And try to treat the illness. So it won't return again.

Listen, World!—Women

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Judge Them by Man's Standard

YOU SAY you can't understand women. You never know how to take them—never know what they'll be up to next.

Stop trying to understand women—was women. Think of them as men. Judge them by the standards which you'd use with a man.

Time was when there was a chasm between man and woman life. Nature had started the sexes out evenly enough—making them all of a piece—but society had molded the woman into something that was neither fish, flesh nor fowl. A perverse, parasitic creature, without legal rights, denied education or social experience, depending on man for her very right to live. Society had made woman live like a gopher, and she thought like a gopher—circuitously, groping and coming in the dark.

But that time has passed—and to the rights of many ladies who found it extremely convenient. Women are back where they started—sharing man's life, getting what they break he gets—with as good a chance to make themselves healthy and wealthy and wise.

There is no longer any reason for treating woman differently from a man in order to maintain her special consideration or exemption. There are no "sex distinctions" in man and woman nature. Her brain and emotion function exactly as his function. She loves as hard, hates as hard, thinks as straight—or as crooked. And, with sensible allowance for the temporary handicaps which motherhood imposes, she's as husky an animal as he, and as able to bear her share of work and responsibility.

As for women, "hoisted 'intuition'"—it's the bunk. Intuition is merely a woman's catch-all term for the technique which she developed in her long generations of groping. Sometimes that technique is amazingly successful, and we conclude that the lady is Bonaparte because we cannot follow her processes, step by step. There is nothing occult about it, however.

She has merely plunged to the point faster and more recklessly than the male dares to do with his more cautious and conservative training. Which fact, any man would instantly recognize, if he were dealing with another man instead of a "mysterious" woman.

Most of the misery between men and women is due to this tradition of "mystery." A man will stand dishonesty, cowardice, laziness, disloyalty and stupidity from a woman, but he wouldn't tolerate from a man for ten seconds, because she's different. He cannot yet realize that there isn't a particle of difference between male and female conduct—conduct that they both have the same source and can be cured by the same methods.

And usually, he doesn't want to realize it! No—men's tickles make egotism more than to think that the Dear Little Woman is less than the dear beneath his chariot wheels. And he'll stand any amount of abuse in order to maintain this pleasing delusion. Which—never fear! the Dear Little Woman understands perfectly and banks on accordingly! New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Diary of a Modern Pappy

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Diary of a modern Pappy: Early up, it being six years come even since I have been dizzy with alcohol. So wandering through the town, passing John Golden, Louie, and the dancing lady, Adele Astaire, along the way, and browsing through the early American wing of the Metropolitan.

In the afternoon to the St. Morris to see the Ted Cooke, who has found an ancient manner in their liking and may remain East all winter. Home in the late afternoon and the Sealham had chewed another hole in the carpet but contrite withal.

Reading my mail and came two hilarious stories from the jongleur Gene Markey which I wish I might print. And so in the thickening dusk with my wife to dine and suddenly struck by a notion to visit Gansmeyer's for roast goose. And did.

Gansmeyer's, I believe, New York's oldest restaurant. It was opened long before the Civil War on the lower East Side and is well worn tradition. Among its early patrons were Millard Filmore, Zachary Taylor and Winfield Scott, who in the smelting glow of oil lamps sipped old ale.

Has moved about considerable since those days but has never gone beyond Union Square. In a section deserted after midnight it continues to remain open until nine in the evening and while not crowded, save at luncheon, usually is comfortably filled with those who enjoy dining quietly.

The original owner was a man named Simon Mayer. His reputation for roasting geese became established he was called "Goose" Mayer and out of this was coined the restaurant name Gansmeyer—a combination of the Yiddish for goose and the owner's name.

To Gansmeyer's came bewhiskered gentlemen with walks reminiscent of push cart days whose language is pure Yiddish. Also fat men with diamond rings who eat heavily and all about afterward tapping paunches with their fist as though stuffed as tight as the geese they devoured.

A post card announces a waitress in a Broome restaurant is named Loidie Scarr.

One of the Broadway luncheon clubs is called The Wednesday Culture Club, so called according to its sponsors because it has no culture and meets on Friday.

In a club of the evening they were discussing the growing number of lily-like ladies who neither toil nor spin. "There is not a building in New York," declared one, "that does not contain its quota of kept women."

"Did you look in at the Old Soldiers Home?" suggested that old cynic, C. B. Driscoll, from a gloomy corner.

One of the perplexities of dining out these days is the sudden closeness of salads. It is almost impossible to find any not smothered with whip cream or some other gooey atrocity with a center suggesting a set of discarded dress shields. Salads should be pungent of onion, vinegar and garlic and something better be done pretty quick.

Personal nomination for the most hideous German dialect comedian since Sam Bernard—Jack Pearl.

A New York newspaper speaks of "a poor little boy with only two suits of clothes."

In our town we did not judge poverty by clothes. A boy was only considered poor when he had the itch of a bawling sail and I was carried skimming along on tiptoe. From the top of the ice wagon the mascot boy yelled: "Sic him, wind!" (Copyright, 1930, McGraw-Hill, Inc.)

Christmas as Usual

Strange as That May Seem

Hey, you, be Yourself!

BOSTON AMERICAN

Despite reports to the contrary, the sun still rises and sets, the human race works, plays and makes love; trains run some time; clocks tick; stores are open; business goes on.

Christmas also falls on December 25. The Boston Evening American mentions this fact as news, since news consists of whatever is odd, amusing or unexpected.

Some doubting Thomases appear to think that the holiday, and possibly the universe, have been abolished. It is a pleasure to reassure them. It is an especial pleasure, because these same skeptics, a while ago, thought that every day was Christmas. When they discovered the mistake they jumped to the opposite conclusion.

Like the sons of Reuben, "unstable as water," they were prone to rush to extremes.

Mr. Oppen, an son of Reuben, says a large number in this small poster. He is a firm believer in Christmas and makes a strong case for it.

We commend his advice to all.

Taxes in Installments

Why Not?

State Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long now comes along with the trite suggestion that the tax laws be altered or clarified to permit the public to pay their local taxes in installments.

By all means let his recommendation be adopted without delay.

The payment of taxes will never lose its nuisance value, and it ought to be made as comfortable and convenient as the mind of officialdom can possibly devise.

If department stores, other commercial and industrial businesses, banking houses and the national government itself can accept partial payments or time payments certainly the local government can afford to be as accommodating to its customers, who happen to own the government.

Partial payments will bring quicker payments. They will save the municipalities the cost of expensive borrowings in anticipation of taxes. They will afford a service to citizens embarrassed by the fluctuations of finances.

Next to reducing taxes, the making it easier to require the burden is the most salutary system.
